

News Release

---

March 1, 2010 – PSC Environmental Services, a subsidiary of PSC, LLC, has purchased the business of General Environmental Management, Inc., and its subsidiaries General Environmental Management of Rancho Cordova, LLC and Island Environmental Services, Inc (collectively, “GEM”).

Like PSC’s Environmental Services Division, GEM offers waste handling and transportation services, largely in California. GEM has a RCRA Part B permitted TSD in Northern California, and transfer operations in Northern California, Southern California, and Washington.

Chris Dods, Senior Vice President, PSC Environmental Services states “The consolidation of GEM and PSC is a win for both companies. PSC will provide the needed infrastructure investment and the addition of the TSD in Northern California will result in improved customer service. These and other synergies will provide a lower combined carbon footprint. The addition of the talented and experienced GEM personnel will make PSC’s team stronger”.

Over the past few years, PSC has repositioned itself as the leading provider of environmental and industrial cleaning services. With this acquisition, PSC is positioned for additional growth for the company and its clients. By strengthening our national footprint, PSC is poised to create a stronger competitive edge and provide its clients with a broader range of services for their waste management needs.

About PSC

Headquartered in Houston, TX, PSC is an integrated industrial and environmental services company with operations throughout North America, Mexico and Puerto Rico. PSC provides industrial cleaning, environmental, transportation and container services to all major industry sectors.

For more information about the Company, call 713.623.8777.